Validus to Exhibit at the 2015 International Poultry and Processing Show

Urbandale, IA January 19th, 2015- Validus, the industry leader in animal welfare auditing, will be exhibiting January 27th-29th at the International Poultry and Processing Show in Atlanta, Georgia. This event is held each year at the Georgia World Congress Center.

IPPE is the world's largest annual poultry, feed, and meat show with all segments of the industry represented including: feed milling, hatchery, live production, further processing, marketing and all supporting activities. This show draws over 20,000 attendees and 1,000 exhibitors from across the world, gathering to discuss industry issues and to see the newest technology.

“Validus is very excited to have an exhibit at this gigantic trade show encompassing so many of our businesses and customers,” according to Dr. David Meisinger, Director of Sales for Validus. “We will be able to talk to egg farmers, egg processors, feed manufacturers, renderers and slaughterers and meat processors, all of whom we offer auditing services.”

At IPPE, Validus will be focusing on all industries represented including feed, meat, and poultry. We conduct 80% of the poultry audits for UEP including the 5 Star program and have auditors certified to perform Safe Quality Food audits in 10 different food sector categories. Along with animal welfare audits and SQF we also conduct the AMI animal welfare audit, and National Renderer's Association Code of Practice along with a variety of feed audits.

For more information regarding our services please visit us in Exhibit Hall A at Booth A351.
